Fanciful architecture and hip restaurants have come together with the sunny southern Spanish climate and beaches. This has transformed Barcelona in just a few decades from a rough port city to one of Europe's—if not the world's—premier destinations.

Stroll along La Rambla, admire the Casa Calvet's façade or the Casa Mila designed by Gaudi, visit the Market of la Boqueria or shop at El Corte Inglés. Sample some of the many bars, cafés and late night haunts while you're at it.

THE CITY

MarinaDa/Shutterstock.com

Like many other cities on the Mediterranean, Barcelona was founded by the Romans. The original settlement, called Barcino, was a small port located on the same spot as today's cathedral. The town was overshadowed by Tarragona, the capital of the province. Both the Visigoths and the Moors invaded Barcelona, however, their influence was not as important to the future of the city as the arrival of the Franks in the late 9th century. It was at that point that Barcelona and Catalonia started shaping their own identity, different from the rest of Spain.

This is most apparent in the language - Spanish, or Castilian, has many Arab words, while Catalan has many French words instead. So Catalan is not a Spanish dialect, but a language in its own right, related to other Romance languages.

Barcelona's history is seen everywhere in the city. The oldest areas are located by the sea, including the shopping enclave Barri Gotic. On the other side of the main boulevard La Rambla lies the legendary Raval district. Until the 1980's, this was the slum area, home to the city's own Chinatown (Barrio Chino) and the red light district. Today, designer shops and cafés have moved in. Further north is fashionable Eixample, the area created as a result of the 19th century expansion of the city.

Music - Magic Fountain

Montjuic, the so-called mountain of the Jews has an elevation of 173 metres and it is higher than any other building in the city. The stairs of Palau Nacional face west towards Fontana Mágica (Magic Fountain) which is the main feature of the collection of waterfalls and ponds on Avinguda Maria Cristina. This spectacular fountain is very popular because of its water arrangements, sound and lighting.

Address: Plaza Carles Buigas, Barcelona

Shopping - Encants Market

The "Encants vells" or Fira de Bellcaire from Plaça de les Glòries in Barcelona, is one of the oldest markets in Europe. From the fourteenth century is an example of Barcelona's commercial dynamism and it is the largest and best loved flea markets where all items are sold, old and new.

Address: C. Dos de Maig, 186, Barcelona

View - The Bunkers

The Bunker, located at the top of Rovira in the Carmel barrió is one of the few "secret" places in Barcelona, not overtaken by tourists. The place is a remains of an old air raid civil war bunker built in 1937. It gives you a beautiful 360 degree view of the city and really nice to visit just before sunset and see the city come to life at night as the lights turn on.

Theme park - Tibidabo

Tibidabo Amusement Park is a magical place and a true Barcelona landmark. Located on top of Mount Tibidabo, 512 m above sea level, it is the highest point on the Collserola Ridge, a magnificent natural park with ten million trees. And all this with the city of Barcelona as an exceptional backdrop. Tibidabo Amusement Park dates back more than 100 years and is one of the oldest in the world.

Sagrada Familia

This modernista architecture gained UNESCO World Heritage status and has shaped the face of Barcelona like no one else. The architect, Antoni Gaudí, died and left it unfinished but he was highly involved in the construction of Nativity facade. The interior of Sagrada Familia has been finished in September 2010.

Park Guell

Park Guell is one of the most impressive public parks in the world, a complex garden with architectural elements situated on a hill in the Gràcia district. Built by the architect Antoni Gaudí in 1900, it was established to create luxury housing sites for the upper-class of Barcelona by count Eusebi Güell. Park Güell is offering great views up to the Mediterranean Sea.

Olympic Park Montjuic

Barcelona's Parc Montjuic was the location for the 1992 Olympic Games and all the facilities are still there to see. The biggest structure is the Olympic Stadium, but you can also see the Swimming Complex, the Olympic Spire structure and an array of landscaped walkways.

Barceloneta Beach

The beach of Barceloneta is the closest to the city centre. Thus it is visited by tourists and locals, particularly as an after-work spot. It stretches from the Hotel Vela on the harbour-side for around 2 kilometres up to the Hotel Arts on the Puerto Olímpico. Between these two landmarks the fine sands and the beach promenade are particularly inviting for cyclists, joggers and inline skating.

Casa Mila - Casa Battlo

Casa Mila in Barcelona is commonly known as La Pedrera and it has been constructed until 1912 on Barcelona's most expensive boulevard, Passeig de Gracia.

Architect Antoni Gaudí designed it in the contemporary modernista style for Rosario Segimon and Pere Mila. Casa Battló is considered the most beautiful building that Antoni Gaudí has designed in Barcelona. Built in 1877 and inspired by marine life, is part of the UNESCO World Heritage also with Casa Mila.

DO & SEE

Kemal Taner/Shutterstock.com

Much of the attraction of Barcelona is the city's wide range of sights. The architect, the design nerd, the football fan, the art historian, the city planner - there is something for all of them in the most self-assured city on the Mediterranean. A visit to Sagrada Família, Casa Mila and Casa Calvet is a must when visiting Barcelona.

A group of people are seated in a dark room, wearing 3D glasses and interacting with a large, glowing blue, crystalline structure. The structure appears to be a model of Gaudí's architecture. The text 'GAUDÍ 4D' is overlaid on the image in white. Below the image, the text 'You will see Gaudí through new eyes' is written in yellow and white. Further down, the text 'Come!' is written in yellow, followed by 'Located next to Park Güell, G Experiencia is an interactive space inspired by the work of Gaudí.' in white. Below that, 'Touch it!' is written in yellow, followed by 'Great interactive walls in 9 languages explain everything to you about the life and work of the great architect.' in white. Then, 'Live it!' is written in yellow, followed by 'With audiovisual 4D have a magical journey to the creative mind of Gaudí and visit the exhibition.' in white. At the bottom, 'Get your 20% discount with this promocode: ARRIVAL16' is written in white, with 'ARRIVAL16' in yellow. Finally, 'Close to Park Güell (Dragon Stairway door)' and 'www.gaudiexperiencia.com' are written in yellow.

Independence - Born Market

11 September 1714 marks a crucial chapter in the history of Catalonia: the fierce siege of the Bourbonic troops of King Philip V, which ended in the capitulation of Barcelona and the loss of Catalan liberties. El Born CC shows the vivacious, dynamic Barcelona of 1700 and the events of 1714 in the context of the War of the Spanish Succession. The archaeological site contains the remains of the neighbourhood demolished by King Philip V of Spain.

DINING

Iakov Filimonov/Shutterstock.com

The easiest thing is to divide Barcelona's overwhelming range of restaurants into two parts: the new and the old. Some of the world's most modern restaurants, managed by the world's most innovative chefs (the most famous is Ferrán Adrià) can be found here, but there is also traditional Catalan cuisine which despite being heavy on occasion, includes very good vegetable dishes (samfaina, a kind of ratatouille, escalivada, grilled, peeled peppers, aubergines and onions espinacs a la catalan, spinach fried with garlic, pine nuts and raisins). Best known is the simple rustic pa amb tomàquet: a slice of bread with olive oil, salt and freshly crushed tomatoes.

"The new ones" in particular may be expensive, but many of the best known chefs' apprentices have now opened their own lower-priced restaurants. Generally speaking, "the old ones" provide better value for money, although even the traditional restaurants know how to charge. You should always reserve a table in Barcelona. Dinner is not served until 21.00.

Cal Pep

Cal Pep is a very popular tapas bar and restaurant. It is best to jostle your way to the bar and let Pep himself recommend the best hors d'oeuvres. Otherwise, there are also tables and a quieter dining room further in.

Offered is a mixture of traditional and innovative cooking.

CAFES

Barcelona's café culture is half Italian, and comes with its own set of simple rules.

Café con leche (café amb llet in Catalan) is for breakfast, preferably with a croissant.

Mid-day, especially after a meal, the locals have an espresso, café solo (un café) or a cortado (un tallat), which is an espresso with milk. Café Americano is what some would call watered down versions of the two first coffees.

In the afternoon, or after dinner, order a café solo corto, a strong espresso, or a carajillo—a café solo with Spanish brandy.

BARS & NIGHTLIFE

Barcelona stays awake while the rest of Europe sleeps! Nightlife starts late, preferably at a bar. Spaniards believe it's smart to eat while drinking, so most bars also serve tapas.

Barcelona's trendy nightlife is in a constant state of change so the best advice is to ask around for the latest and greatest places, especially in fashion and record shops, or to approach people who you think might know.

SHOPPING

Shopping in Barcelona offers lots of interesting browsing. Unusual shops can be found in most parts of the city, but those who want to be efficient should focus on Placa Catalunya and Barri Gotic. The amusing and gigantic department store El Corte Ingles is located by Placa Catalunya. Come here for the wares, but also for the people. Across the street is El Triangle, a grotesquely large shopping palace with a good perfumery and a Camper shoe store.

Calle Avinyó, in Barrí Gotic, is possibly Barcelona's most interesting shopping street. This is where Z is located, the crazy interior store selling both kitsch and comical trinkets. Other fun stores include street fashion store Soda, Angel Gimeno specializing in trendy shirts for men, and Loft Avignon, which caters to the more sophisticated set. Herborista del Rei in Barrí Gotic, is the best choice for herbs and spices.

Visiting the La Boquería, half way down La Rambla, is something of a must. This covered market provides everything when it comes to food and the place is also popular for a lunch or a refreshing glass of cava.

The El Born district is also a good place to shop for food.

Casa Gispert offers coffee, dried nuts and fruits and Tot Formatge is one of Barcelona's best-stocked cheese shops.

For serious fashion shopping, make your way to Passeig de Gràcia, the parallel street, Rambla de Catalunya, and the surrounding district. You will find all the big international fashion names here, including Spanish greats such as Adolfo Domínguez, Armand Basi, Groc and the leather specialist Loewe. More economic alternatives such as Zara, Mango and Massimo Dutti are also represented. You can also find a good selection of trend-conscious designer fashions at Noténom.
